No experience necessary!

We need your help stock checking here!

Yorkshire Wildlife Trust manages almost 100 reserves, restoring biodiversity, protecting habitats and wildlife and providing wonderful opportunities for visitors to get close up and see some of our most enthralling wildlife.

Part of the management of many of our grassland, fen and heathland reserves is carried out by grazing animals. Grazing helps control competitive plant species that can out-compete the finer, more interesting species of grass and wildflower that we seek to encourage.

Livestock on the reserves need to be checked on three to four times a week to ensure that their health is good, and that they are still all there.

No previous knowledge or experience necessary, but you need to feel confident being around grazing animals, and any past experience or knowledge of stock welcome.

Commitment: Dependent on reserve anywhere from 6 weeks – 6 months and takes up to an hour each visit.
